Assignment of Copyright

Author/Title of book being reviewed _____

To be completed by the copyright holder:

I attest that I am the author of this book review and that it is an original work not previously published in whole or substantial part; that it is free of plagiarism; and that I have exercised reasonable care to ensure that the material is not inaccurate, libelous, or obscene and that it does not infringe on any copyright, right of privacy, or other right of any third party.

I hereby assign to the Business History Conference the copyright present and future in the above-named book review for the legal term of the copyright including all renewals or extensions in all languages throughout the world. The granting of copyright entitles the Business History Conference to publish the material in the Journal and to reproduce the book review in any form or medium now or hereafter known throughout the world.

Notwithstanding this grant of rights, I retain the right to use the work I have submitted, without charges, in other publications written or edited by myself, provided that I acknowledge the Journal as the original place of publication. I also retain the right to mount my book review on my own personal World Wide Web home page and/or that of my employers, provided that I (i) acknowledge the Journal as the original place of publication and the Business History Conference as the copyright owner and (ii) provide electronic links from my book review to the Publisher's home page for the Journal <<http://www.es.oupjournals.org/>> and to the Business History Conference's Web site <<http://www.eh.net/bhc/>>.

If I am an employee of the US Government submitting a work of the US Government, insofar as I am able within the constraints of national law, I hereby assign the rights of the above-named book review to the Business History Conference, according to the terms above.
