

Bahá'í Exhibit at White House Conference

The scene of the latest exhibit on the Bahá'í Faith was the White House Conference on Children, held in Washington, D.C., December 13-18. The Conference has been held every ten years since 1909 when it was first called by President Theodore Roosevelt. Its purpose is to explore ways to meet the needs of children in every phase of their development.

Four thousand invited delegates were selected by Governors, Congressmen, Senators and national and voluntary organizations to participate in the Conference. These delegates were assigned to forums dealing with specific areas of concern to children. Heading the forum, "Confronting the Myths of Education," were Dr. Dwight Allen (Dean, School of Education, University of Mass.) Chairman and Dr. Dorothy Nelson (Dean, University of So. Calif., Law School) Vice-Chairman, both of whom are Bahá'ís. Mr. Anthony Lee of the Bahá'í office of Student and Youth Activities was selected as the Delegate officially representing the Faith at the Conference. There were several other Bahá'ís present as Delegates representing state and other organizations.

The exhibit emphasized the necessity for the equal development of spiritual and material civilization. Approximately 5,000 pieces of literature were distributed, including Human Rights bumper stickers, the Bahá'í Statement on Human Rights, Ebony reprints, plastic recordings, and a specially prepared booklet, "... make me a cause of bounty to the human world. . ."

The exhibit was designed by the Public Information Office and was manned by Miss Gloria Woodson and Mrs. Natalie DiBuono with the assistance of several Bahá'ís from Washington, D.C. In addition, presentations were arranged by D.C. area Bahá'ís to show how children are taught Bahá'u'lláh's universal principles through song, recitations and posters. These presentations lasted ten minutes and were given at intervals during the Conference.

Leading educators and professionals from many specialized fields attended the Conference and saw the Bahá'í exhibit. It is gratifying to note the number of persons who have Bahá'í friends or relatives, and who had heard of the Faith and visited the Shrines in Haifa and/or one of the Houses of Worship. More than 200 requested to have additional information sent to them.

Bahá'í participation at such a prestigious event greatly assists in reaching the leaders throughout the country and moves us further along our goal to proclaim the Message of Bahá'u'lláh to "every stratum of human society," as we are instructed by the Universal House of Justice.

Work Opportunities Abroad

If you are a businessman with experience or technically trained in a field such as engineering or metallurgy and are interested in pioneering, you can contact the Regional Office of the Department of Commerce when located in a large metropolitan area or write directly to:

U.S. Department of Commerce
Bureau of International Commerce
Washington, D.C. 20230

for a publication which lists American firms doing business in foreign countries — a separate publication for each country. It is called: American Firms, Subsidiaries, and Affiliates - (name of country). Cost $1.00

The U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of International Labor Affairs, assists the International Labor Organization in its efforts to recruit U.S. citizens for technical assistance assignments in developing countries. A minimum of ten years' experience is usually required. Interested candidates may obtain job sheets by writing to:

Office of Program Development and Coordination
Bureau of International Labor Affairs
U.S. Department of Labor
Washington, D.C. 20210

Job descriptions should be requested by title and country.

There is opportunity for business executives to contribute their knowledge to other countries through an organization which acts like a Peace Corp of American businessmen. Contact:

International Executive Service Corp
720 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York 10019

New French Edition Available

Les Leçons de Saint-Jean-D'Acre (Some Answered Questions). By 'Abdu'l-Bahá, collected by Laura Clifford Barney. A new, 1970 edition of this book has been published. In God Passes By, Shoghi Effendi refers to this collection as "‘Abdu'l-Bahá's priceless explanations, covering a wide variety of subjects, given to her (Mrs. Barney) during the course of an extended pilgrimage to the Holy Land."

This pilgrimage took place during the difficult years, 1904-1906, when 'Abdu'l-Bahá was confined to the city of 'Akká by the Turkish government and permitted to receive only a few visitors. At the time He was under constant threat of removal to a distant desert confinement.

The first English edition of Some Answered Questions was published in England in 1908, a French translation being published approximately the same time. Hippolyte Dreyfus, the first Frenchman to embrace the Bahá'í Faith, translated the work into French.

With French language goals being such a crucial challenge at the present time in the Nine Year Plan, this new edition will be most helpful in teaching the Faith wherever this language is used, and also for those currently learning the language to prepare themselves for pioneering.

NEW PROCEDURE FOR FUND REPORTING

The chart reproduced above is the initial step in the revision of reporting practices by the Office of the National Treasurer. In connection with the new materials inaugurated at the institutes on "Tapping the Sources of Celestial Strength," future reporting will be done on the basis of the Bahá'í Calendar. The numeric report above includes contributions for the calendar month of December but this practice will be replaced by reports for only Bahá'í months beginning with the March issue of National Bahá'í Review.

A further extension of this new procedure will involve the preparation of receipts for contributions to the National Bahá'í Fund. Beginning with the month of Sharaf, receipts will be prepared and mailed at the close of each Bahá'í month. These new procedures should help to foster an increased awareness and familiarity with the new calendar brought for this time as well as to help promote regularity in contributing to the Bahá'í Fund.
